Hundreds of thousands join national strike in Italy over Gaza genocide

Tens of thousands marched through the streets of Rome as Italy's largest trade unions called a national strike to protest the genocide in Gaza and the interception of the Sumud Flotilla. Demonstrators condemned the government's complicity with Israel and its failure to protect Italian citizens involved in the humanitarian mission. Similar protests took place across dozens of Italian cities, less than two weeks after a nationwide demonstration on September 22 that brought the country to a standstill. Schools, railways, ports, and public institutions were disrupted.

Leonardo, Italy's main arms manufacturer, is among the leading suppliers to Israel. In a recent interview, CEO Cingolani acknowledged that Leonardo continued export sales despite the ongoing genocide, contradicting official government claims.

So good to see humanity still has so much heart... A good example of a first step in a fair and genuine peace deal for Israel and Palestine... 1. An immediate permanent ceasefire on BOTH sides. 2. The immediate release of ALL hostages/"prisoners" on BOTH sides. 3. Immediately open Gaza and West Bank boarders for unlimited aid from the UN and other trustworthy sources. 4. Other details, for the future, can be hashed out later, but must be fair and just, and considerate of the safety and needs and human rights of BOTH sides.

Israel Thought It Beat the Gaza Flotilla — Then Italy Shut the Ports

Italy said it would protect the Gaza flotilla. Instead, it stood by and watched a war crime unfold. Now the workers are rising.

Right, so Italy's government thought it could play both sides — send a couple of warships to shadow a flotilla, look serious for the cameras, give hope to the world that this time things would be different but still keep Israel sweet behind closed doors. A neat little trick, until the moment Israel did what Israel always does: stormed civilian aid boats in broad daylight and in flagrant violation of international humanitarian law. And what did Rome's warships do in the end? They watched. They logged the crime scene. They let international law go up in smoke. That is not protection. That is betrayal. But betrayal has consequences. Because while Giorgia Meloni mocked dockworkers and their proposed strike action beginning today as a "long weekend break," those same dockers will shut down her ports, will send Israeli ships fleeing, and now turn Gaza's struggle into Italy's revolt. If the navy folded, the unions aren't going to — and that's why Italy, of all places given what we've witnessed them allow to happen, has just become Israel's worst nightmare.

Right, so there is a kind of defeat that people accept. Defeat in the face of overwhelming force, where you can say you fought and you lost, where history at least records that you stood your ground. If you stand up and fight you might lose, if you don't stand up and fight you will always lose. But betrayal is different. Betrayal cuts deeper than any defeat because it is not forced on you, it is chosen. It is not the work of an enemy overpowering you, it is the work of an ally abandoning you. That is what happened to the Global Sumud Flotilla, that fleet of activists, aid workers, unionists and ordinary citizens carrying food and medicine for Gaza, struck by Israel while under the supposed shadow of Italian and Spanish warships. And in the decisive moment, those warships did nothing. They watched. They logged radar data. They may have transmitted cables back to their capitals. But they did not protect.

The flotilla was no secret operation. It was a moral spectacle, and deliberately so. Its mission was transparent: to challenge Israel's story that the blockade of Gaza was impenetrable.

As an American I have been living through some dark times these last few years, but finally between the Sumud Flotilla and the strikes in response to the Israeli piracy it finally feels like there might just be some light left in this world. We the people of the world shouldn't just demand our leaders do better, we should replace them all. Maybe this could be a spark that lights the fuse for a global revolution where we throw off the chains of the rich and powerful who claim to be our leaders while they do nothing but manifest pain and suffering.

Mass Rome Protest Blasts Giorgia Meloni's Gaza Policy as Genocide

Hundreds of thousands marched through Rome in one of Italy's largest protests in years, demanding justice for Gaza and condemning Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni's policies as "complicit in genocide." The demonstration highlighted outrage over Gaza's humanitarian crisis, deep political divisions in Italy, and renewed civic activism across generations. Powerful banners, chants, and emotional testimonies turned the streets of Rome into a call for global solidarity and urgent humanitarian action.

Thanks to the Italians, Irish, Spanish, and Australians who have chosen to stand at the forefront of this struggle and to be the voice for Gaza's dismembered children! You are the only sign of hope that makes me believe humanity is still alive! And shame on those who support horror and genocide!

The world must rise and follow Italy's lead enough bowing to corporations, corrupt governments, and the delusions of power-hungry leaders. We, the human family, demand a different world one built on justice, compassion, and truth, not greed and domination.
It's time to stand for life itself—for our planet, our people, and the generations to come. No more silence. No more complicity. We will no longer tolerate those who profit from destruction or deny the right of every soul to live in peace and dignity.…

Over 2 million Italians joined a nationwide strike on October 3 in solidarity with Palestine, halting public transport, flights, schools, and hospitals across the country. Milan and Rome saw some of the largest pro-Palestinian demonstrations in decades, with 100,000 protesters rallying in Milan and 300,000 in Rome. Clashes erupted in Milan after protesters blocked highways, prompting police to respond with smoke bombs. The CGIL trade union, which organized the strike, demanded the Meloni government "stop the genocide" and recognize Palestine, following the Israeli navy's interception of the Global Sumud flotilla carrying 40 Italians. Major cities including Turin, Pisa, Bologna, and Pescara experienced similar shutdowns, with the Port of Livorno blocked by protesters. Watch for more

Massive protests broke out in parts of Italy on Monday as tens of thousands of people protested as part of a day of action to “denounce the genocide in Gaza", after Italian Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni said her country will not recognise the Palestinian state for now.

The demonstrations came on the same day as France and other countries prepared to recognise a Palestinian state at the United Nations General Assembly in New York, following recognition by the UK, Australia and Canada on Sunday.

Pro-Palestinian protesters clashed with police in Rome after a demonstration against Israel's interception of an international flotilla.

A number of demonstrators clashed with riot cops once the march was over.

Officers used tear gas and water cannons, while some of the protesters were immobilised and detained.

Rome Boils Over: Fourth Day of Pro-Palestine Protests Turns Violent

3,631 views Premiered 6 hours ago #rome #protest #israelgazaceasefire

Tensions flared in Rome as pro-Palestinian protesters clashed with riot police following Israel's interception of an international flotilla carrying aid to Gaza. What began as a peaceful march involving students, families, and elderly demonstrators quickly spiraled into chaos when a group of protesters broke away from the main rally. Police deployed tear gas, water cannons, and sound grenades to disperse the crowd, leading to several arrests. The confrontation marks the fourth consecutive day of unrest in the Italian capital as anger mounts across Europe over the deadly flotilla raid and Israel's ongoing military operations in Gaza.

It's amazing, how stupid can people be? Palestinian was a designated category to identify a particular group of people, not a country. And if a group of Israelies where to attack an Arab country, killing and raping children there would be he'll to pay, and rightly so. But the attack on Israel is deflected by the condition in Gaza.Think meone attacked your country, killed and rated your women and children what would you do?

Large crowds assembled in central Rome on Saturday for the fourth straight day of protests in Italy since Israel intercepted an international flotilla trying to deliver aid to Gaza, and detained its activists.

People holding banners and Palestinian flags, chanting "Free Palestine" and other slogans, filed past the Colosseum, taking parSince Israel started blocking the flotilla late on Wednesday, protests have sprung up across Europe and in other parts of the world, but in Italy they have been a daily occurrence, in multiple cities.

On Friday, unions called a general strike in support of the flotilla, with demonstrations across the country that attracted more than 2 million, according to organisers.

The interior ministry estimated attendance at around 400,000.t in a march that organisers hoped would attract at least 1 million people.

Chaos has broken out in Italy after pro-Palestine protesters clashed with police, as the country refuses to recognise a Palestinian state.

Thousands of protesters took to the streets as people stood in solidarity with Palestinian's amid the ongoing Israel-Hamas war in Gaza.

According to the BBC, Rome and Milan saw the biggest crowds of demonstrators, with the protest reportedly coordinated by trade unions.

The protest spiralled out of control as tensions quickly spilt over around Milan's central station, leading to roughly 60 officers being injured.

Italy's ANSA news agency reported that, apart from the roughly 60 injured police officers, 10 people were arrested in Milan.

87,763 views Oct 5, 2025 #romeprotest #italy #palestine

Unprecedented chaos has erupted in the Italian capital Rome as over 1 million people took to the streets demanding justice for Palestine and condemning Israel's actions on flotilla. What began as a peaceful march on October 4 quickly spiraled into violent clashes between protesters and riot police. Protesters chanted "Free Palestine!" and "Stop the Genocide!", filling Rome's historic avenues with deafening calls for Gaza. 200 protesters clashed with police who responded with tear gas and water cannons. In retaliation, protesters set cars and garbage bins ablaze, turning parts of the city into a war zone. Watch this video to know more.

Just to clarify:
We were more than 2 Million People.
We blocked everything from motorways to train stations, ports and airports.
We not only were in Rome, but also Milan, Turin, Bologna, Genova, Florence, Naples, Pisa and a hundred more cities....
